Here's a summary of his video so you don't have to watch it:

- The home page jumbotron could have a little more something in it. Also the "professional websites" is colored, which makes it look like a link. Maybe instead, your name is colored and links to About Me page.
- The home page could use a back to top button since there's more content
- The My Skills section feels like a big gap, something feels off, don't know what but it's not necessarily a bad way to represent the skills. Maybe include the skills in the jumbotron.
- Featured projects could be good to have description or some info about them
- Projects page could use some captions or more information about them, so people have a better idea what they want to click on.

- Projects page could be split into sections, such as websites and photos/graphics, etc.
- In project description, add technologies that were used for the project. Emphasize the skills I have that were used.
- Name the images better
- On the about page, maybe give more details or description about your hobbies
- Change resume format to .pdf
- Switch the Instagram and Facebook links, Instagram goes to Facebook right now and vice versa
- Logo in the footer seems like it should link back to the homepage
